Welcome to the Detroit Opera House at the David DiChiera Center for the Performing Arts, and to Michigan Opera Theatre’s 49th season! In keeping with our mission to create exceptional and innovative experiences, MOT’s 2019–2020 season features opera classics alongside contemporary works that blur the boundaries between jazz, musical theatre and traditional art forms. This autumn, we are thrilled to present Mozart’s Don Giovanni and Sondheim’s Sweeney Todd.

Written in 1787, Mozart’s take on the Don Juan legend has withstood the test of time, exploring the best and worst of human nature with dark humor and exquisite music. This production features beautiful period costumes, designed by our Don Giovanni director John Pascoe.

Sweeney Todd returns to our stage after a 35-year absence from MOT’s repertoire. In addition to welcoming debut performances, you will recognize several familiar faces, as the ensemble cast for Sweeney Todd allows us to showcase many exceptional artists who hail from right here in Southeast Michigan.

Looking forward to our winter/spring season, we are excited to present the resident artists of the MOT Studio in a regional performance of Gianni Schicchi and Buoso’s Ghost at the Macomb Center for the Performing Arts. We return to the Detroit Opera House with Terence Blanchard’s recent “opera in jazz” Champion, based on the life of welterweight boxer Emile Griffith, and will close the season with Ruggero Leoncavallo’s beloved Pagliacci in a production that has become a favorite with MOT audiences.

In addition to the exciting presentations this season, MOT is pleased to announce the election of Ethan Davidson as Chairman of our Board of Directors and Trustees. Ethan succeeds long-term Chair R. Jamison “Rick” Williams after a remarkable 17-year tenure. In recognition of his exemplary leadership and unwavering generosity, the Detroit Opera House stage will be named in his honor as the “R. Jamison Williams Grand Stage.” On behalf of MOT, we extend our heartfelt appreciation to Rick. In addition, we look forward to welcoming Ethan to the new Board leadership team.

MOT is pleased to acknowledge the generosity of the William Davidson Foundation as our premier sponsor of the 49th season. In addition we appreciate the leading support of the Ford Motor Company as our fall sponsor, and the generosity of the many local and regional partners who make our work possible. We invite you now to relax, enjoy the performance, and we hope to see you again soon at the Detroit Opera House.

SYNOPSIS
Setting: Spain, mid-18th century

Act I
Leporello, servant to the nobleman Don Giovanni, keeps watch outside the Commendatore's home at night. Suddenly, the Commendatore's daughter, Donna Anna, rushes out, struggling with the masked Giovanni and followed by her father. The Commendatore challenges Giovanni to a duel and is killed. Giovanni and Leporello escape. Anna asks her fiancé, Don Ottavio, to avenge her father's death.

In the morning, Giovanni and Leporello encounter one of Giovanni's former conquests, Donna Elvira, who is devastated by his betrayal. Leporello tells her she is neither the first nor the last woman to fall victim to Giovanni and shows her his catalogue with the name of every woman Giovanni has seduced.

Peasants celebrate the marriage of Masetto and Zerlina. Giovanni flirts with the bride, telling her she is destined for a better life. But Elvira urges Zerlina to flee her suitor. She also warns Anna, who is still unaware of the identity of her father's murderer and has asked Giovanni for help in finding the man. Giovanni, for his part, insists that Elvira is mad, and Anna and Ottavio wonder what to believe. As Giovanni leaves, Anna suddenly recognizes his voice as that of the murderer. Devastated but determined, she once more asks Ottavio to avenge her. He wonders how to restore her peace of mind. Giovanni, who has invited the entire wedding party to his home, looks forward to an evening of drinking and dancing.

Outside Giovanni's home, Zerlina asks Masetto to forgive her. Giovanni enters and leads them both inside. Anna, Elvira, and Ottavio appear masked and are invited in by Leporello. In the ballroom, Giovanni dances with Zerlina, then tries to drag her into the adjoining room. When she cries for help, Giovanni blames Leporello. Anna, Elvira, and Ottavio take off their masks and, along with Zerlina and Masetto, accuse Giovanni, who is momentarily surprised but manages to slip away.

Act II
Having exchanged clothes with Giovanni, Leporello takes Elvira on a nighttime walk, leaving his master free to serenade her maid. When Masetto arrives with a band of peasants to hunt down Giovanni, the disguised Don sends them off in various directions, then beats up Masetto. Zerlina finds her bruised fiancé and comforts him. Later that night, Leporello—still believed by Elvira to be Giovanni—is surprised by Anna, Ottavio, Zerlina, and Masetto, who all denounce the supposed Don. Fearing for his life, Leporello reveals his true identity before making his escape. Ottavio proclaims that he will take revenge on Giovanni and asks the others to look after Anna. Elvira thinks about Giovanni, whom she still loves in spite of everything.

In a cemetery, Giovanni and Leporello meet the statue of the Commendatore, who warns Giovanni that by morning he will laugh no longer. Giovanni forces the terrified Leporello to invite the statue to dinner. The statue accepts.

Once again, Ottavio asks Anna to marry him, but she replies that she will not until her father's death has been avenged.

Elvira arrives at Giovanni's home. She makes a last desperate attempt to persuade him to change his life, but he only laughs at her. The figure of the Commendatore enters and asks Giovanni to repent. When he boldly refuses he is consumed by flames. Elvira, Anna, Ottavio, Zerlina, Masetto and Leporello appear, contemplating their futures and the fate of an immoral man.
As the relentless scorned lover of Don Giovanni, some have considered Donna Elvira a mad woman. Despite learning of Don Giovanni’s thousands of conquests, murder and attempted rape, she continues her pursuit of him, convinced he will eventually change his ways and return her love.

But Nicole Cabell has a different perspective. Donna Elvira has become a signature role for the soprano, one she has performed throughout the world in Cologne, Berlin, Tokyo, Cincinnati, Milwaukee, San Sebastian, and now, Detroit.

Below she discusses her approach to her staple role and why Donna Elvira is anything but mad.

How would you describe the character and her relationship with Don Giovanni?

Donna Elvira is a noblewoman who will not take her betrayal lying down. Don Giovanni has left her in a precarious position of compromised honor after seducing her, and she is in fierce pursuit of him. She wishes to find him, convert him into an honorable man, and eventually marry him, no matter how angered she is with him in the present moment. When she does find him, she attempts to steer his other victims away from him. It is debatable whether or not this is because she wants him all to herself, or she is trying to protect them, but it’s probably a little of both. She is really the only woman in the opera that truly loves him, and she believes, at least for a moment, that he is capable of change.

How do you approach portraying the role?

I believe she must be portrayed with incredible strength and ferocity. The music is written with this in mind, as it can be very militant and angular during some of her solos. However, her music is also very soft and feminine in parts, and this reflects her dual nature. I try to play her in both respects, to simply do what the music tells me to. She is one of the more complex characters in opera and should never be played as hysterical or manic. We see her duality, her constant push and pull away from Don Giovanni, her anger coupled with pity and love and her ulterior motives dancing alongside her transparency. In actuality, she is very human.

Has the way you portrayed Donna Elvira evolved over time?

While my understanding of her has grown deeper over the years, my portrayal has stayed steadfast. Many of the productions I’ve been involved with have been contemporary, but even then, Donna Elvira’s complex, beautiful character has not been tampered with by directors to the point of altering her motivations. I simply sing her the way she is written, which is so detailed and interesting. Don’t mess with a good thing!

How do you feel about portraying the role during today’s social climate? Does that affect your interpretation?

I’ve always played her tough, so that will not change. I know of old productions where my character (along with the other woman on stage) might be put in compromising positions on stage. These days, intimate or violent stage work has to be approached in a way that avoids the gratuitous, which is often unnecessary to get ideas across, but used to be a way of stimulating the interest of the audience. I’m thankful for the change, and I don’t believe it will affect my interpretation.

What do you hope audiences take away from Donna Elvira’s story?

I think she is relatable, which is unfortunate given how badly she’s been scorned. But no one can say they haven’t been the victim of some bad behavior in their lives, and hopefully in this production I can portray a character that is a fighter, that reflects the (albeit doomed, in her case) beauty of perseverance and determination. Also, Donna Elvira’s capacity to love even the most wicked of men is something many can relate to. While she gives into weakness here and there, she is constantly rebounding from her abuse, and comes across as a survivor rather than a victim.
Ron Raines reigns supreme as an MOT stage favorite and the company’s longest performing singer

AWARD-WINNING SINGER AND ACTOR RON RAINE S has become famous for many things. Some may know him from Broadway, starring as Daddy Warbucks in Annie, Joseph Pulitzer in Newsies and Billy Flynn in Chicago. To others, he is Alan Spaulding from Guiding Light, CBS’s longest running daytime drama. But Raines is a cherished opera singer and the company’s longest-running performer.

In 1975, Raines was a recent music graduate of Oklahoma City University and an apprentice with Santa Fe Opera. After auditioning with MOT Founder and General Director David DiChiera in Santa Fe, Raines was cast in the 1976 world premiere of Washington Square. The role marked the beginning of a close relationship with both MOT and DiChiera.

Throughout the next five decades, Raines’ MOT performances would include The Magic Flute, A Little Night Music, The Merry Widow, Follies, Show Boat and Side By Side. It also featured several gala concerts, including a 1994 New Year’s Eve celebration and the 1996 Detroit Opera House grand opening with Luciano Pavarotti and Joan Sutherland.

Raines said he still remembers the day DiChiera took him to see the dilapidated building that would eventually become the Detroit Opera House.

“He dragged Nancy Dussault, Bill Hayes and me out of a Side By Side rehearsal at Music Hall over to the Grand Circus Theater. The place was a disaster,” he said. “He assured us this would be Detroit’s new state-of-the-art opera house. It was a ‘Dream the Impossible Dream’ moment and, no surprise, David made it come true.”

Raines returned to MOT to honor DiChiera during DiChiera’s 2017 Grand Salute retirement concert. Following DiChiera’s passing in September of 2018, he came back to Detroit to perform at his memorial service by special request of DiChiera’s daughters.

Reflecting on his career, Raines said DiChiera was an important factor in his success.

“He was the first to cast me in key roles that would become my repertoire,” he said. “One of those roles was Ben Stone in Follies. Years later, I was nominated for a Tony in that role on Broadway.”

This season, Raines portrays Judge Turpin in Sweeney Todd, his first appearance at MOT without DiChiera at the helm.

While Sweeney Todd marks Raines’ first MOT performance without DiChiera at the helm, he said he and his wife have always felt at home in Detroit and as part of the DiChiera family.

“He was a mentor,” he said, “but more importantly, a dear friend.”

SYNOPSIS

Act I

It is 1845 and Anthony, a young sailor, has arrived home to London. He is accompanied by a man he rescued drowning off the coast of Australia, Sweeney Todd. As they disembark, they are accosted by a beggar woman who alternates between begging for alms and soliciting sex, but seems to recognize Sweeney.

Anthony is thrilled to have returned to London but Sweeney is not – he tells Anthony the tale of a young barber who was sent into exile by a powerful man with designs on the barber’s beautiful wife. Sweeney enters a Fleet Street pie shop, owned by the energetic Mrs. Lovett. She bemoans the hard times and the scarcity of meat. Sweeney asks about the empty apartment upstairs, and Mrs. Lovett tells him about the barber, Benjamin Barker, who was falsely accused by Judge Turpin so that the Judge could get to Barker’s wife, Lucy. The Judge and Beadle Bamford then lured Lucy to the Judge’s house where he tormented and raped her. Sweeney’s anger confirms what Mrs. Lovett had suspected – that he is indeed Benjamin Barker.

Mrs. Lovett tells Sweeney that Lucy had poisoned herself, and that his daughter Johanna is now a ward of Judge Turpin. Mrs. Lovett returns a set of silver shaving razors to Sweeney, who vows to use them to get his revenge.

In Judge Turpin’s house, Johanna sits at a window. Anthony happens to wander by and immediately falls in love with the beautiful young woman. Threats from the Beadle only strengthen his resolve to save her.

Barber Signor Pirrelli’s assistant, Tobias, hawks a miracle elixir that regrows hair. After exposing the elixir as a fraud, Sweeney challenges Pirrelli to a shaving contest, which Sweeney wins easily. Beadle Bamford, who judged the contest, is impressed. Sweeney invites him to come in for a complimentary shave.

Anthony, not knowing that Johanna is Sweeney’s daughter, asks the barber for help. He intends to rescue Johanna, and wants to use the shop as a safe house. Pirrelli arrives to pay Sweeney a visit. Mrs. Lovett takes Toby downstairs for a pie, and Pirrelli drops his false accent and reveals that he used to be Benjamin Barker’s assistant. Rather than give in to blackmail, Sweeney kills Pirrelli.

Johanna is terrified because the Judge intends to marry her on Monday, but Anthony has a plan to help her escape. Meanwhile, the Beadle suggests that the Judge clean up a bit to be more attractive to Johanna, and sends him to Sweeney Todd. As the Judge tells Sweeney about his impending marriage, Sweeney shaves him, enjoying the anticipation of his revenge. But before he can slit the Judge’s throat, Anthony bursts in and blurs out his plan to save Johanna. The Judge storms out, declaring that he will lock Johanna up and never come to the barber shop again. Sweeney swears to kill as many people as possible, punishing the rich and corrupt and relieving the poor from their misery. Mrs. Lovett sees an opportunity: they can dispose of the bodies by using the meat for her pies, and a new enterprise is born.

Act II

Mrs. Lovett’s pie shop is now bustling, and Toby helps with customers. Sweeney has a new barber chair with custom modifications for disposing his victims. When Anthony discovers that the Judge has locked up Johanna in the asylum, he gets Sweeney to help him plan an escape. Anthony will go to the asylum.
One way to make opera-lovers cringe is to tell them that The Phantom of the Opera is their favorite opera. The show features a classical singing style, a dramatic plot and even has “opera” in its name. But Andrew Lloyd Weber’s long-running favorite is, in fact, considered a musical.

Sweeney Todd is also considered a musical but one that is often performed by opera companies. The same is true for works like West Side Story, Show Boat, A Little Night Music and Candide, which MOT produced in March. So what exactly is the difference?

Some will say that operas are completely sung through while musicals feature spoken dialogue in between songs. However, productions on both sides don’t follow that rule: Les Misérables, Rent and Hamilton are completely sung through while operas like Carmen, The Magic Flute and The Daughter of the Regiment have spoken dialogue.

The reality is, the answer is not always clear. While the line is blurry, these are some primary distinctions between the two:

FOCUS

As a general rule, operas prioritize music over acting, and musicals prioritize acting and the overall story over singing.

“Both contain characters telling stories through music, whether singing, dancing, or playing an instrument,” said Karen Ziemba, a Tony-nominated Broadway performer who portrays Mrs. Lovett. “However, a performer must have a large, well-trained voice with nuance to play on an opera stage. There are well-trained vocalists in musical theater too, but acting takes precedence.”

Broadway and opera performer Nathaniel Hackmann, who plays Anthony Hope in MOT’s Sweeney Todd, said the difference between opera and musical theater even applies to the approach for auditioning.

“An opera singer knows that his/her musical pitch, tone, musicality and facility are top priorities to the ones writing the checks. If a vowel or emotion must be modified or underplayed in order to serve the music, that sacrifice is made,” he said. “Likewise, a Broadway hopeful knows when walking into a musical theater audition that the producers want subtlety, contrast of emotion and truthfulness, so if a pitch or beat or vocal timbre is less than pristine, but it serves the character and story, that sacrifice is made.”

While acting may reign supreme for musical theater, MOT Director of External Affairs Arthur White said the opera tends to be much more melodramatic than those of Broadway shows.

“Musicals don’t typically have the drama, death and great suffering which is often the cornerstone of Singing Style

The singing styles of opera and musical theater are arguably the most notable differences between the two. Opera singers are classically-trained, which often requires undergraduate and graduate degrees, private vocal coaching and apprenticeships with opera companies. In fact, the voice isn’t considered to be fully matured until a singer reaches his or her later 20s or early 30s.

In modern Broadway shows, most songs are sung with the “chest voice,” the powerful “belting” also found in pop music. Chest voice is closer to the speaking register with the vibrations felt in the chest. In classical style, female singers also sing in “head voice,” the higher registers where the sound vibrations are felt in the head. The difference between the two was not always as distinct with older musicals, like The Sound of Music, Carousel and The Music Man, which use head voice more than contemporary Broadway shows do.

Vibrato, the pulsating change of a pitch, is used almost continuously in opera, while musical theater singers often save vibrato for the end of a sustained note or may remove it altogether. Enunciation is also a priority for musical theater as opposed to opera, with musical quality sometimes sacrificed in order to be understood.

“The vocal range in an operatic score, whether for grand opera or intimate chamber opera, is different than the type of singing needed to perform a pop score for a contemporary musical,” Ziemba said. “Traditional musicals, however, like Rodgers & Hammerstein, Lerner & Lowe, Kurt Weill and some Sondheim, are classically-based, musically, and require some voices of operatic proportion and quality.”

While music is generally champion in opera, MOT Assistant Music Director and Chorus Master Suzanne said things are changing.

“Opera singers are being cast not only vocally but how they fit the character, and musicals have actors who are trained as legit singers too,” she said. “The two are so closely related—it’s hard to define, but easier to understand when you hear it.”

Amplification

Opera singers train for years to hone and perfect the quality of their voices, which includes learning to sing to be heard throughout an entire opera house without the assistance of a microphone. This level of projection requires full-body exertion, so much so that opera singers rarely sing more than three performances a week and almost never back-to-back.

Musical theater performers are assisted through microphone amplification, requiring less effort to project their voices throughout an entire theater. As a result, musical theater singers are typically expected to perform up to eight shows a week, including back-to-back matinee and evening performances.

Ziemba said the modern instrumentation in many musical theater shows also requires the use of amplification.

“The theatre-going public has become used to hearing voices through microphones,” she said. “The instrumentation in many musical theater orchestras is created by electronic synthesizers which a vocalist’s sound must be ‘mixed’ with instead of competing to be heard.”

Language

While not a requirement, operas are typically performed in foreign languages while musicals are performed in English. Opera originated in Europe, which is why the classics tend to be sung in Italian, French or German. Musical theater, rather, is an American art form.

However, as opera has become popular worldwide, more and more are composed in other languages, including English. Additionally, both musicals and operas are often translated and sung in different languages than their original.

What about Sweeney Todd?

“Sweeney is one of those works that is certainly a crossover,” said Acton. “It has demands for specific singers that are more operatic, yet need the acting skills necessary in traditional musicals.”

White said he considers Sweeney Todd an opera, because it possesses a lot of death and great suffering and is quite dramatic in its writing. However, he said the in-between nature of the work is found within the music itself, especially in the difference in the characters’ social classes.

While the role of Joanna sings in a high register, Mrs. Lovett belts in a cockney accent. Others, like Sweeney Todd himself or Adolfo Pirelli can float somewhere in-between.

“You don’t have to be an opera singer to play Pirelli,” he said, “but you have to be a damn good singer.”

For Hackmann, Sweeney Todd offers opera and musical theater the best of both worlds.

“Sweeney is an unequaled work of genius in many facets,” he said. “But the marriage of the epic and sophisticated score, the gripping and macabre examination of human emotion and, most prominently, vengeance in the story, make it a worthwhile venture. It has endless challenges and delights for the performers and audiences in equal measure.”

I, Too, Sing America
By Chris Jakob with poetry by jessica Care moore
(Grades 6-12)
This new multi-media performance incorporates video, live song, narrative and poetry to highlight the stories and achievements of African American artists and athletes who defied limitations and paved the way for integration in their fields. (Subjects: American History, Humanities, English Language Arts, Arts Education — Music and Theatre.)

Jack and the Beanstalk
Arranged by John Davies with compositions by Sir Arthur Sullivan
(Grades K-6)
When Jack sells the family cow to a mysterious man for a handful of beans, he has no idea what kind of adventure awaits him! When the beans take root, and a magical stalk grows to the sky, Jack will discover a land of giants, a golden hen and an important lesson about treating other people with kindness. MOT’s new production sets the story in the ancient West African Mali Empire and tells the tale through music from the operettas of Sir Arthur Sullivan. This new twist on an old favorite is a must-see for children of all ages! (Subjects: English Language Arts, Social Studies, early Math, Arts Education — Visual Arts, Music and Theater).

The five resident artists of the Michigan Opera Theatre Studio represent some of the most exciting emerging talent in opera today.

Coming to Detroit from all different areas of the country, these early career opera professionals gain valuable experience through myriad performance opportunities in main stage and community productions and hone their skills through master classes and training with an array of world-class professionals, guest artists and coaches.

Throughout their residency, Studio Artists receive advanced individual training from MOT’s Director of Resident Artist Programs, renowned American tenor Richard Leech, Principal Coach/Accompanist Michael Sherman and MOT’s Assistant Music Director Suzanne Mallare Acton.

Supported by a major grant from the William Davidson Foundation, the program serves as a central component of MOT’s enhanced presence in the community through productions in the Detroit Opera House, community venues, recitals and special events. MOT’s community initiative productions are now selected and mounted specifically for the Studio Program. Studio Artists filled lead and featured roles in Leonard Bernstein’s Candide last season, Ricky Ian Gordon’s 27 in 2018, Mark Adamo’s Little Women in 2017 and The Tender Land in 2016. They will present a double bill of Giacomo Puccini’s Gianni Schicci and Michael Ching’s Buoso’s Ghost Feb. 29-March 1. Through these productions, MOT fulfills its community initiative to produce a full-scale opera annually in venues throughout Metro Detroit.

Michigan Opera Theatre Studio Overview

RICHARD LEECH

Director of Resident Artist Programs

American tenor Richard Leech is one of the most celebrated tenors of his generation. From the Met to Vienna, and Carnegie Hall to the Hollywood Bowl, for more than three decades he has made his home on the stages of the world’s great opera houses and symphonies. In addition to singing, he is also a professor of voice and opera with Rutgers University. His leadership role with the MOT Studio allows Mr. Leech to utilize all aspects of his broad experience as he oversees the development of some of opera’s most exciting emerging artists and brings their performances to our stage and into our community.

— Wayne S. Brown, President and CEO of Michigan Opera Theatre
Molly Hughes

Molly Hughes has a unique position in the Michigan Opera Theatre Orchestra. She is both a violinist and the Orchestra Personnel Manager, a role she describes as a conduit between management and the musicians.

This season marks her seventh in the double role, and she said shifting between a manager and a musician continues to be a learning process. “I wear many hats, which requires a little bit of juggling,” she said. “Even when we are deep in rehearsing, I have my eye on the clock for calling a break time or keeping tabs on the temperature in the pit to be sure it does not pass a certain degree mark.”

Molly has been with the orchestra for 17 years and is a Michigan girl through and through. She’s a Berkley, Mich. native and current resident who has lived on the same street her entire life. She also holds a Bachelor of Music in Violin Performance and a Graduate Certificate in Orchestral Studies from Wayne State University.

“There are so many varied musical opportunities to be had throughout Michigan,” she said. “In one week, you can be in the studio recording for an R&B artist, performing a collaborative concert at an art museum, playing for a wedding ceremony and performing with an orchestra on the weekend. The variety keeps life interesting from week to week!”

At MOT, she said she’s passionate about ballet, especially performing works like Stravinsky’s Firebird and Prokofiev’s Romeo and Juliet. Her favorite opera composer is Puccini, especially Turandot.

Outside of music, Molly enjoys studying the Bible, being outdoors, paper crafts, hand lettering, modern calligraphy, dog walks, tennis with her husband and time spent with family.

Gordon Simmons

At 72, trumpet player Gordon Simmons has the honor of being the oldest member of the Michigan Opera Theatre Orchestra. He is also one of the orchestra’s longest-serving members, embarking on his 40th season with MOT this fall.

One of Gordon’s favorite things about being in the orchestra is performing with his colleagues, especially during the Three Tenors concert in 1999. But one of his most memorable moments was in Don Pasquale with a dog.

“One day just before our first rehearsal, I got a call from the director of production wanting to know if I would do the trumpet solo on stage,” he said. “That is hard enough, but then he said they want me to be a blind trumpet player with a dog. I had to hurry from the pit get on a simple costume and go on stage with a dog in a matter of minutes. It was challenging to say the least.”

Gordon began playing trumpet when he was nine years old, eventually attending Taylor University, Wheaton College and Wayne State University, studying trumpet with Arnold Jacobs, Frank Kaderabeck, and Donald Green. Now, he teaches trumpet himself, both at Oakland University and through his own private studio.

“For many musicians teaching and performing go hand in hand,” he said. “I tend to be a people person which helps immensely in the area of teaching.”

He said his life as a musician in Michigan has given him great experiences. “Working in Detroit has allowed me to play a variety of musical work,” he said. “Having spent several years on the road has helped me to appreciate Michigan.”

Greetings from the MOT Volunteer Association.

I have been a music lover for many years and Michigan Opera Theatre is very important to me. Our MOTVA volunteers provide the company a tremendous level of support. We have over 700 members who serve as ushers, tour guides, and Boutique volunteers. Our Divas and Divos provide artist hospitality, and the Opera League and Dance Council members host parties to celebrate events such as opening night performances. Last year our members logged almost 20,000 volunteer hours. Bravi!

If you are hearing about our volunteer programs for the first time and you would be interested in joining us, please give us a call. Volunteering is a great way to meet other interesting and involved patrons. Membership information is located on the MOTVA web page at michiganopera.org/get-involved/volunteers/ or call Colin Knapp at (313) 965-4271 or email cknapp@motopera.org. Colin will be happy to speak with you and connect you with a volunteer opportunity to meet your needs.

I offer my sincere thanks to all of our current volunteers. You are THE BEST!

Sincerely,

In remembrance of our founder and long term general director, The David DiChiera Artistic Fund has been established to support and honor his artistic vision.

This fund enables Michigan Opera Theatre to produce compelling opera, present innovative dance, and engage with thousands of students and members of our community through our educational and outreach programs. Most importantly, it allows MOT to preserve David’s legacy and his dedication to the young people of Southeast Michigan and young emerging artists from all over the country. To contribute or for more info, please visit www.michiganopera.org or contact Colin Knapp, Manager of Donor Engagement at 313.965.4271 or cknapp@motopera.org.

Michigan Opera Theatre gratefully acknowledges the generous corporate, foundation, and individual donors whose gifts to The David DiChiera Artistic Fund were made before June 30, 2019.
